

Dr. Matts-Åke Belin, Global Lead, Decade of Action for Road Safety, WHO

Dr. Matts-Åke Belin is, since January 2022, Global Lead for the Decade of Action for Road Safety at the World Health Organization (WHO). Dr. Belin has over 30 years of experience within the Swedish government where he primarily worked with overall safety policies, strategies and collaboration with different stakeholders. Before Dr. Belin joined the WHO he was the Director of Vision Zero Academy at the Swedish Transport Administration. Dr. Belin has had several international assignments, such as chairman of the technical committee 3.1 on Road Safety at the World Road Association; international representative at the US Transportation Research Board (TRB) standing committee on Transportation Safety Management; and Swedish delegate in the UN Road Safety Collaboration. Dr. Belin has a PhD in public health policy from Karolinska Institute in Stockholm and he is also affiliated with KTH Royal Technology Institute where he is serving as an adjunct professor on traffic safety.